

Behind the Scenes at OxBlue

ATLANTA, September 29th, 2014 – OxBlue, a leading provider of construction cameras for project documentation and time-lapse movies, has released a new video that highlights the company's focus on delivering products and services designed to maximize their clients' success. Featuring employee perspectives and client testimonials, the video gives viewers insight into the company's customer-centric approach and the difference this makes to clients on their projects.

Testimonials from clients underscore the unique benefits they get from their OxBlue construction webcam services, including, among others:

- Company-wide access to multiple jobsites around the world through one platform
- The ability to use the camera for monitoring and documentation purposes and marketing and public relations efforts all at the same time
- User-friendly features that improve communication among stakeholders

"Everything we do is done with the client in mind. From the products and services we offer to the way we deliver them – our goal is to always make our clients' jobs easier and their projects run more smoothly."

Chandler McCormack, President of OxBlue

In that spirit of simplicity, every construction camera system comes as one complete package and includes all hardware, easy-to-use technologies, cellular data connection, and a professionally produced construction time-lapse movie of the completed project. It also includes service and support from a dedicated account manager and client support team member who understands the ins and outs of each client's projects.

"Our products and tools are one part of the equation for helping clients have successful projects," explained McCormack. "The other is providing expert services from start to finish for every project."

As OxBlue account services manager, Kenneth Hatchett, puts it, "We always want our clients to feel like they got even more than they expected out of their experience."

For more information on OxBlue construction cameras and construction time-lapse movies, please call OxBlue at (888) 849-2583. To watch the new video, visit OxBlue.com.

OxBlue's new Behind the Scenes video includes employee perspectives and client testimonials.

About OxBlue: OxBlue, a leading construction webcam service provider, has been making the jobs of construction professionals and project stakeholders easier since 2001. Ultrahigh-resolution jobsite images, high-definition time-lapse movies, and intuitive technologies connect everyone on the project to the jobsite and with each other for better project management, better communication, and a more efficient build. OxBlue construction cameras are at work across 6 continents and all 50 states, serving Fortune 500 companies and top ENR contractors. For more information, please visit OxBlue.com